Industrial Designer, 2010 Olympic Torch

“I have a tremendous sense of excitement to see the torch unveiled and to see the first runners with it. After working on the design of the torch for over a year, I feel such a great part of the Olympic movement.”

Since joining Bombardier Aerospace in 1999, Mr. Fagan has held positions in the areas of Interiors Engineering and as Senior Designer in the Aircraft Interiors, R&D and Product Development groups within the Business Aircraft division.

Mr. Fagan’s liaison experience between external clients and senior engineers gained in his current role, as well as his background in Industrial Design, has given him a unique perspective that has been integral to the Olympic Torch development.

Mr. Fagan graduated from Ottawa’s Carleton University with a Bachelor’s Degree in Industrial Design.
